As church-goers and lay leaders, we have been exploring the links between mission, community, gathered worship/liturgy and culture/music-making. We have asked: Who are we called to be and be with? How do we be community? Where do we relate?

If you are interested in developing community or connecting with different communities, please join in to hear John Bell, enjoy stimulating discussion, participate in community intercultural singing and devour an intercultural afternoon tea.

JOHN BELL is a Resource Worker with The Iona Community, who lectures, preaches and conducts seminars across the denominations. He is a hymn writer, author and occasional broadcaster, but retains a primary passion for congregational song. John is based in Glasgow and works with his colleagues in the areas of music, worship and spirituality.

Psalm 23

1 The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not be in want. 2 He makes me lie down in green pastures and leads me beside still waters. 3 He revives my soul and guides me along right pathways for his name's sake. 4 Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I shall fear no evil; for you are with me; your rod and your staff, they comfort me. 5 You spread a table before me in the presence of those who trouble me; you have anointed my head with oil, and my cup is running over. 6 Surely your goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

Q. What is it about this psalm that makes it so 'popular'?

Reflection

The intimate relationship between the psalmist and God expressed in the psalm as “the Lord is my shepherd” touches us at a deep level. This psalm seems to be one of those passages of scripture that grows on people and people grow into it as they grow older. At the same time, for many people, this psalm takes them back to a former time, almost a mythical time, perhaps a childhood time when things were simpler. One interpretation of Psalm 23 is that it is an older person looking back over their life. Their faith and joy continue to be almost child-like. They can recall occasions when it seemed they were on the good pasture and it seemed as if God was leading them beside still waters – an image that conjures up a sense of serenity and also of life-giving. At other times when the shadow of death was near – perhaps when life was under threat, or the psalmist was being pursued, or ill, or perhaps others around were dying or had died, or perhaps life was dark and it seemed that the shadow of death was close – the psalmist came to realise – perhaps then or perhaps later – that God was with them, leading them and giving comfort. The poet has had very difficult days. God did not take them away. God led the poet at these times as well as during the times of idyllic childhood in pastures green. God helped the poet face their fears and endure their troubles.

The rod and staff suggest the direction that the shepherd gives to the sheep, as well as the staff that was used not only to direct but to rescue from danger. Palestinian shepherds usually carried two implements – a club to ward off wild animals, and a crook or staff to guide and control the sheep. So, the imagery in the psalm suggests protection and guidance.

The spreading of a table suggests worship in the temple. Indeed, perhaps the poet is casting their mind back to attendance at many festivals in the temple, and the joy that this has given. The presence of the enemies is difficult to interpret. Does it mean that the psalmist has endured affliction and has risen above it, or does it mean that they have had enemies in the past and will have enemies in the future, perhaps there are enemies present in the temple?

Certainly, the psalmist rejoices in the banquet, and celebrates God's provision that gives confidence.

In verse 6 the psalmist speaks of goodness and mercy following them. The usual translation of the word 'follow' is inadequate. To follow is like a trailer following a car. Whereas the word has the sense of pursue. The goodness and mercy of God pursue, chase after the poet. In contrast to the enemies who pursue, God's goodness and mercy pursue the psalmist. This leads back to the opening statement that the Lord is not a shepherd, but my shepherd.

The psalmist can say that the Lord is my shepherd because the psalmist considers themselves as one of the flock, a sheep. The words "You are with me" – the first time in the psalm that the word 'you' is used - in verse 4, in the Hebrew are preceded by 26 words, and followed by 26 words, thus structurally, the psalmist is saying that 'God is with him' is the central feature of the psalm.

Some of the Couples and Friends Club meeting last Monday. Guest speaker was Paul Moussa, coordinator of Meals Plus. Paul gave an update of Meals Plus. This sparked discussion as to how the Couples and Friends can further assist the great work undertaken.

Our Church Council meeting last Thursday night. At right, is new member, Rev Geoff Stevenson, Chairperson of the Parramatta Nepean Presbytery, and former minister at PM. The Church Council membership includes ministers and lay people from our three congregation's. From time to time, staff such as Katelyn Director of people and Culture, and Lyall, CFO attend to assist the Church Council on particular matters.

Thank you to all who made the candidates forum held last Friday night a success. The speeches by the candidates on what makes a great city good were mostly inspiring. There was good discussion both during the forum and over supper.

Today we remember mums. For some that is a memory of joy and thankfulness, particularly if mum is still with us. For others, perhaps also sadness mum is not here, and for others regrets or pain. For some women sadness that they did not become a mum. Today we remember. For those who can, Happy Mother's Day. For all we pray.

Blessings, Keith Hamilton
